Local farmer fears for future generations of growers

By Maggie Wysocki

The number of farm operators in Manitoba is decreasing, while the average age of farmers continues to rise, according to the 2016 Census of Agriculture results.

Despite the increase in age, only one in 12 farmers said they had a formal plan in place for how their operation will be transferred to the next generation.

For 62-year-old grain farmer Greg Thidrickson these statistics are alarming and he says the next generation of farmers "don't have a prayer."

"The margins are so narrow. There's not a lot of regular guys like me farming anymore. The big guys are taking over and the next generation won't have the money to buy land," he told the Record during an interview on his property in Petersfield.

Thidrickson has been farming for more than 40 years and says he bought 320 acres of land in the 70s for $60 an acre. Now, he says he's started to sell parcels of his land for upwards of $800 to $1,000 an acre.

Petersfield farmer, Greg Thidrickson says he's worried about who will buy his grain crops after learning about the 2016 Census of Agriculture results, which showed only one in 12 farmers said they had a formal plan in place for how their operation will be transferred to the next generation.

The rising cost of land is only the first challenge. Cost of equipment, fertilizer and seed has sky rocketed too, he says, adding he now pays $700 for a tonne of fertilizer as opposed to $80 when he first started.

Census results also revealed that 44 per cent of Canadian farmers do some sort of off-farm work as a supplementary income. Roughly 30 per cent of farm operators worked an average of 30 hours a week or more off the farm, according to the results.

In Manitoba, total farm area dropped two per cent to 17.6 million acres while the average age of Manitoba farmers rose by 1.3 per cent to 53.8 years old.

Thidrickson said his main concern with major corporations purchasing his land is that the money won't necessarily stay in the local economy.

For now, Thidrickson believes there's not much luck for the next generation of growers.

"My 28-year-old nephew is trying to start farming but he has to borrow all our stuff or else he wouldn't have a chance. The expenses aren't even realistic," he said. "You've got to get an education now-a-days as a backing because you don't know what could happen with farming now."

Master angler reveals his catfish catching secrets

By Maggie Wysocki

The Rock 'n' Roll Fisherman, a City Cats guide and a Cabela's pro staff are only a few of the titles master angler Todd Longley has reeled in over the years.

But the title Longley thinks describes him best is teacher.

"I love teaching people the right techniques and seeing their smiles," he said. "Fishing is all about confidence. I see guys out there who don't have that and they lose the catch."

When the Record caught up with Longley near Lockport last week, he was on his Alumacraft Competitors 205 boat, playing the role of teacher to a group of kids from the Fishing Fun day camp run by the City of Winnipeg.

"Being in a group home and stuff when I was younger, I kinda have a soft spot for kids now and I want them to get off the streets and enjoy the outdoors," said Longley, who has been fishing since he was 10.

After only 20 minutes of being on Longley's boat, he managed to reel in three massive catfish, each measuring between 35 and 38 inches long.

"The biggest I've ever caught was 37 pounds and 42 inches. That was right here in pretty much this spot," he said, referring to where the boat was anchored only some feet away from the banks of Lockport.

Along with teaching at day camps, Longley organizes and volunteers at several charity fishing events. His most recent project was, Keeping It Reel, which took place on June 23 at Selkirk Park. The event gives kids living with disabilities and their families a day out on the water with Longley and other professional anglers as their teachers.

So what kind of advice did the master angler have for local and area fishers?

"It's all about timing and water temperature," he said, adding that early spring and August are the best times to head out on the water and fish. "It dies down at the end of June for spawning then picks up again mid to late July and the fish are biting hard."

When it comes to bait, Longley leaves behind minnows and swears by shrimp and full frogs instead.

"Far none frogs are the best. But only in July, then it's shrimp," he says.

The most common mistake he sees recreational anglers make is setting their hook too soon, explaining that catfish like to play with their food so patience is key.

For rods, Longley says he looks for something eight to nine feet long that is soft but still has enough back bone to "reel in a river monster."

"I always talk up a storm about this city. Selkirk is the catfish capital of North America and I've brought thousands of people here from around the world to fish," he said, adding that actor Chad Lowe was the most recent celeb he took fishing.

To learn more about Longley's catfish catching secrets, you can book him as a guide on your next fishing trip by visiting citycats.ca.

E. coli concerns at Gimli Beach draw mixed reactions

By Patricia Barrett

The province issued an E. coli advisory for Gimli Beach after a July 6 test found high levels of the bacteria in Lake Winnipeg.

Reaction to the advisory was mixed. Despite the warning, dozens of people enjoyed the beach last Sunday.

An advisory sign posted at the boardwalk states that Gimli Beach has experienced "high levels" of the bacteria this season, which last for short periods of time, but the "possibility of illness increases with higher levels of bacteria."

Erick, who did not want his surname used, came from Winnipeg with his family for the day and was not aware of the advisory. He said he did not see the sign.

"If I knew, I wouldn't swim in there," he said. "They should post signs everywhere that warn people. They should have them every 50 metres so it covers almost the entire place."

E. coli levels fluctuate at Gimli, according to Sustainable Development's Beach Monitoring website.

On June 6, Gimli Beach had a colony-forming unit (CFU) of 119 (average density of E. coli per 100 ml), which dropped later in the month. On July 4, a test showed 39 CFU. Two days later, that spiked to 322 CFU, prompting the advisory. For recreational activities, the acceptable level of E.coli is 200 CFU, according to the province's Water Protection Handbook.

Another beachgoer, who was splashing in the lake with her three kids, said she knew about the advisory, but did not wish to comment on whether she had any concerns.

To reduce the risk of illness, the advisory states that people should avoid swimming if they have an open cut or wound or are experiencing illness, to wash their hands before handling food and to avoid swallowing lake water.

For Gimli resident Samantha Michaluk, who has owned and operated Viking Rentals (Seadoo rentals) for 20 years, advisories are par for the course.

"The thing you have to look for is how many people really, truly say they got sick from the water?" she said. "I've never heard of people getting sick in my 20 years here."

Gimli Mayor Randy Woroniuk, a retired provincial conservation officer, said he thinks the gull presence in Gimli is "not out of the ordinary," but they can contribute to E. coli.

What he's more concerned about is what's being dumped into the Red River and making its way north to Gimli.

"I do not believe that dumping raw sewage into the Red River in Winnipeg is not impacting our lake here. I don't believe it," said Woroniuk. "I don't believe it's being diluted to such a point that it's not having an impact."

Damage to Marine Museum a hit to the community, manager says

By Lindsey Enns

Recent damage caused by a suspected group of vandals at the Marine Museum of Manitoba is a hit to the community, the museum's manager says.

"It's a hit not only to us as the museum but to Selkirk and it's history," Shaylene Nordal said.

Nordal said sometime between the hours of 6 p.m. on July 2 and 9 a.m. on July 3 a large lifeboat that was positioned near the edge of the M.S. Chickama II was pushed off of the ship and badly damaged once it hit the ground below.

"It had to be more than one person, it was a big lifeboat," she said. "The front end was smashed, it would all have to be rebuilt."

Nordal said at this point they are unsure if they'll be able to bring the boat back to its original state. She added it's difficult to put a price on the lifeboat.

"That was irreplaceable, you can build another one but it's not the original that was on here."

Nordal said Selkirk RCMP are aware of the situation and the museum is working closely with the City of Selkirk to help increase security in the area.

"I just hope that it stops," she said.

Nordal is asking anyone who sees any suspicious activity around the museum after hours to contact police.

"If people see anybody on the ships ... I'd really like it if they phone police."

Duane Nicol, chair of the museum's board, said they also erect barriers to keep people off the ships when the museum is closed. Nicol said this recent incident is "very disappointing."

"Each incident is a big set back for us," he said. "The money that we were going to use for improvements and enhancements go to fixing things."

Nordal said setting up a fence around the museum to keep people out after hours just isn't an option.

Marine Museum of Manitoba manager Shaylene Nordal shows where a lifeboat used to sit before a suspected group of vandals pushed it off the M.S. Chickama II earlier this month.

"We want people to be able to come down and walk around the grounds," she said. "We want to be able to leave it open."

"Our museum is the ships and they just happen to be outside."

Nordal said they have six employees this summer along with several volunteers. She added July and August are their busiest months and they are expected to welcome thousands of visitors to the museum during that time.

Repairs and improvements to the museum are also ongoing. Painters could be spotted putting a fresh coat of paint on the museum's lighthouses last Wednesday afternoon.

The Marine Museum of Manitoba, located at the corner of Eveline Street and Queen Avenue at the entrance to Selkirk Park, officially opened in May 1974 in Selkirk.

Cruisers come together for 17th annual Show 'n Shine

By Jessica Worb

Cars were rolling in and the sun was shining in Petersfield on Saturday for the Lily Pad Cruisers 17th annual Show 'n Shine.

The show, which began in 2001 with just seven cars, has grown into a large, yet intimate, community. Within the first hour, there were 125 cars parked out on the grass in Mallard Park.

Members and guests parked their cars and lawn chairs and enjoyed the silent auction, food, and company, but Marcel Lemire, president of the Lily Pad Cruisers, said that they did not always have the show in the large space.

"When we first started, we were across the street in a restaurant parking lot," Lemire explained. "It was called the 'Lily Pad Restaurant,' and that's how the name came about."

Custom license plates seemed to be common on the lawn. For Jim McNeill, who lives in Great Falls but was born and raised in Selkirk, the license plate "Y trash it" on his 1937 Ford Tudor, came easily to him.

When McNeill brought the car home more than 10 years ago, he says his wife almost had a heart attack.

"When she saw me pull up in the driveway, she told me to junk it," McNeill laughed. "I looked at her and said 'why should I junk it?'"

The 1937 Ford Tudor took McNeill five years to build.

"I took about a dozen wheelbarrows of mud out of the inside of it. All the upholstery was gone. It was just metal coils and springs. I took the car apart 12 different times before it was complete," he said. "I painted each piece individually."

Although the car is perfectly clean and polished now, he says there is always more work to be done.

Although the 71-year-old loves his car, he says he is looking to downsize in the future.

Three doors down from "Y trash it" sat "Mr. Happy."

"Mr. Happy," a 1970 Cheval SS, is owned by Cliff Meder, who has been a member of the Lily Pad Cruisers for four years.

Meder's co-workers coined the nickname about two decades ago and he has had it ever since.

"I always knew that when I bought my first classic car, I would make sure to get the license plate Mr. Happy," Meder laughed.

While Meder attends eight to 10 car shows a year, he said that the Lily Pad Cruisers show is something special.

"The camaraderie is excellent here," he said. "It doesn't matter what kind of car you drive, we all respect each other. Every member has something different to bring to the table, which makes it a great group of people to be around."

Lily Pad cruisers have members from all over the province, as far as Great Falls and Victoria Beach. Vice-president Faye Drummond was excited to see how many people showed up this year.

"We have been doing a lot more advertising, so it is nice to see that people are responding to that," she said. "As long as people are interested, and they want to bring their cars, there will always be a place for them."

All food donations from the event will go to the Selkirk Food Bank and cash donations will go to the Multiple Sclerosis Society.

Selkirk hospital home to upgraded cancer care services

By Maggie Wysocki

Since the Selkirk Regional Health Centre officially opened on June 25, thousands of Interlake patients have walked through the region's new hospital.

One of the changes many patients say they're happy about is the bigger and more efficient CancerCare Program services.

"People don't realize what services are available to them until they're diagnosed with cancer so patients have been really pleased when they see what we have," said Interlake-Eastern Regional Health Authority spokeswoman, Lauralou Cicierski.

The new space on the hospital's second floor has a larger square-footage area for treatments, more windows for natural light and additional treatment rooms. The upgrade also includes two new dialysis chairs, allowing a total of seven patients to receive chemotherapy at a time.

"The staff are really enjoying the bigger space. They have more privacy, they're not tripping over one another. The mood is definitely happy," said Audra Nesbitt-Hume, the clinical team manager for Selkirk oncology, dialysis and outpatient unit.

The new space currently treats 125 patients but Nesbitt-Hume says CancerCare Manitoba is aware they can accommodate even more.

Additional staff have also been hired, which will allow the hospital to increase their patient intake, she says.

Allowing people who live in the Interlake to stay close to home while receiving treatment is necessary to the recovery process, she said, adding that local or area residents diagnosed with cancer can contact CancerCare Manitoba to be referred to the Selkirk Regional Health Centre.

A new Cancer Navigation Services office is also fairly new to Selkirk, opening its doors last spring. The resource gives patients and their families emotional support and the practical education needed regarding treatment.

If you or someone you know is diagnosed or think they might have cancer, contact the Cancer Navigation Services at 1-855-557-2273.

Give up the turkey bait!

Hi fishers, our friends have given us some really great angling stories this past week, enjoy!

The sand on Gimli's Willow Island beach was cool on Sandy's bare feet in the still early evening. A slight lady, her short brown hair fell on either side of her delicate face. Her gaze cast east across the glass-like water that reflected the weakening sun at her back. Beside her, her son, David Sykes, a thin yet soon to be a full grown man whipped a fishing line out in hopes of catching tomorrow's lunch. He sat back in his folding chair beside his mother taking in the sight of pelicans splashing into the water not far out. Lazy tiny lapping waves fell on the shore. Seagulls called to each other as they flew overhead. David touched his line, "feeling" for a fish nibbling just as his grandfather, David in Lac du Bonnet, had taught him. He tensed as he felt a tugging tremble then a tearing away of his line. He tightened his reel tension to match whatever had taken his baited hook. Without a word Sandy rose making space for David to play his fish. All the hints and tips his grandfather had given him over the years came racing forward in his mind. When the fish was still he slowly walked backward away from shore drawing the fish closer to the beach. When it fought he would walk forward reeling in. So it went time after time until a nice sized jackfish broke water right up at shoreline. He waded into the water claiming his prize then mother and son collected their belongings and walked up to their house in the cooling evening air. Thanks for the story Sandy and David.

The Lockport pier happened to be open last Wednesday which is where I had the good fortune to meet Lori Gesell and Kyle Plyschke of Winnipeg. Lori was one of those exceptional gals who when you're with her the world gets just a little bit brighter and happier. Her tied back blond hair complemented her appealing face. She was in constant motion. Bursting with enthusiasm Lori gave one of her favorite stories about her son, Jessie, fishing when he was eight years old. The family had a boat house on the shore of Lee River east of Lac du Bonnet which also served as a cottage. Once, on a sunny Thanksgiving afternoon, willowy, blond Jessie got the bright idea of going fishing and since he had been enjoying pieces of turkey all day he didn't see any reason why a fish wouldn't like it too. He hated to part with some of his meat but the need to try to catch a fish was greater so he baited his hook with some and down to their small wood pier he went tossing his line in. Lori was busy in the house doing dishes when suddenly she heard angry shouts from Jessie crying, "give it up, give it up, you give it up!" She rushed out onto the dock to see her son kneeling, straddled over a sixteen inch pickerel grasping it by the head and with gritted teeth was yelling at it. Perplexed, Lori ran forward lifting her son off the fish telling him one should not abuse fish. Jessie still upset excitedly complained, "I want my turkey meat mom and he won't give it back!" Lori sat down on the little pier cross-legged gathering her son to her and began laughing so hard she was shaking!

There was a stiff north wind coming off the lake at the south beach of Grand Marais last weekend. I was sitting in my car looking at the three foot high waves pounding the shore when I saw a truck pulling up behind me. I got out and introduced myself to a very muscular looking fellow, Jeff Armitt, who began taking fishing gear out of the box of his truck. He talked to me as he worked recalling catching a huge jackfish off the pier at Kenora. The humorous part was no sooner had he released the one shown here, he caught an even bigger jack. It was so big a fishing shop owner he knew had to come down to the pier and help him land it. He took pictures then released the big guy but was surprised to see another angler had taken his "magic" spot when his back was turned!

See you next week, so long for now.

Honey helps sweeten the job for local beekeeper

By Maggie Wysocki

When Brad Hogg and his wife Carol were both laid off from their jobs only a few short months apart, Brad says it was his faith that kept him optimistic.

"We both have a strong faith in God and we just knew that we had to have faith about where our lives would go from here," said Brad, who lives on a 20-acre property in Libau located 20 minutes north of Selkirk.

With his IT job gone, Hogg decided to trust his faith and follow his dad's passion for beekeeping.

In 2014, he bought nine hives and quickly grew his colony to 74 the next year. Meeting the province's standards as a commercial beekeeper, Hogg had to come up with a name for his company.

"Calling it 'Faith Apiaries' just felt right," he says.

Now, the couple has more than 90 hives, harvesting close to 100 pounds of honey each year.

They sell their honey for $8 a pound at local and area farmer's markets, on their website and to family and friends.

"If people are in the Interlake area, I don't mind doing deliveries either," he adds.

Turning a profit is why Faith Apiaries first started, but Hogg says that's not his only goal.

"I'm really, really interested in helping new people because I know how difficult it is to find relevant information to this area. You can't listen to someone in Tennessee tell you how to keep bees. It's totally different here," he said.

Brad has hosted workshops at Selkirk's Gaynor Family Library, created Facebook groups to share information with hobby beekeepers and joined the board of the Manitoba Bee Keepers Association.

His door is always open, he says, encouraging anyone who's interested in beekeeping to get in contact with him.

"Whatever level someone wants to be involved at ... working bees, buying bees, just learning about them ... they can come to me and I'll help them."

The best way for people to support the "save the bees movement" though is buying local honey, he says.

"That helps me keep more bees and helps me pay the scientists to find out how we can combat stress on bees."

Owning an apiary isn't an easy job and Carol says her husband is often working from "dawn until dusk." But Brad says he doesn't mind spending so much time with the insects he calls "incredible."

"They're the most fascinating thing I've ever encountered. There just isn't that much brain power in an insect for everything they know."

RCMP Community Block Party celebrates Canada 150

By Jessica Worb

Loud sirens sounded on Dominion Street in Winnipeg last Friday, but not for the usual reasons.

Young children, who attended the RCMP Canada 150 Community Block Party, were happy to be sitting in RCMP cars sounding the sirens.

The event, which was in celebration of Canada's 150th birthday, was an opportunity for Manitobans to learn more about the RCMP.

"We thought it (Canada's 150th birthday) would be a great opportunity as a provincial police force to showcase all of the things that we do," said Assistant Commissioner Scott Kolody, Commanding Officer of the RCMP in Manitoba.

While seeing their child on inside of a police car is usually a parents' worst nightmare, last Friday the parents were smiling and taking photos of their children inside the cars.

"This is a great opportunity for the community," said Peggy Lapensee, one of the attendees.

The event, which was the first of its kind for the RCMP, began with opening words from Kolody, followed by pipes and drums.

Young children and their families lined up and explored the different units, which included the Emergency Response Team Tactical Armoured Vehicle, the Explosive Disposal Unit, Forensic Identification Services, and several other RCMP vehicles.

Many officers said it was nice to relax and answer community members' questions.

"It's so nice to talk to people in the public in a relaxed situation," said Const. Darren Kerchak. "Typically, when we interact with the public, somebody is hurt or it's an intense situation. Now, we can relax and talk to them and explain what we do."

Many guests in attendance were friends and family members of RCMP staff.

The Amirault family came in from Selkirk to enjoy the festivities. For Sophie Amirault, 10, and her sister Zoey, 8, it was their first time seeing some of the RCMP equipment up close.

The girls, who were in line for face paint, said they were excited to see and explore everything.

"No, not really," Sophie giggled when her mother, an RCMP officer, asked her if she wants to be a police officer when she grows up.

Attendees kept their heads up to the sky as several members of the Emergency Response Team propelled down the side of Headquarters. Crowds of Manitobans stood out in the sun, watching in the heat. Other demonstrations were from the Police Dog Services and the Explosive Disposal Unit robot. For many children and adults, it was their first time seeing these demonstrations.

Adding to the festivities was the presence of the Grey Cup, which was carried in by Jeff McWhinney, The Keeper of the Cup for the Canadian Football Hall of Fame and Museum.

"We are able to get on the street and be able to bring kids and different generations together," McWhinney said. "It's great to see."

CAA Manitoba urges drivers to prepare for storm season

Submitted

As tornado season in Canada peaks in June and July, CAA Manitoba reminds motorists how to stay safe should they find themselves facing a funnel cloud.

"Never try to outrun a tornado in your car - it's hard to know if it's coming toward you or moving away," said Erika Miller, public and media relations specialist for CAA Manitoba. "If you see a funnel cloud forming, the best thing to do is pull over and seek shelter."

Drivers should look for cover nearby in a sturdy building or storm shelter, heading to the basement and away from windows. If there's no shelter available, drivers should find the nearest ditch or low-laying area and lie flat, covering their head with their arms.

"Whatever you do, don't take cover in an underpass," Miller said. "While it may seem safe, they become wind tunnels, and the underpass could collapse or your vehicle could be blown away."

Severe weather safety tips:

- Remember that tornado season in Canada peaks in June and July.
- Always listen to the local radio station for weather warnings and updates in the area.

Competition grows for Selkirk's Yard of the Week

Elly Garrett's property won this week's annual Communities in Bloom competition, Yard of the Week, which encourages environmental beautiful of the City of Selkirk.

By Maggie Wysocki

Along with summertime comes yard work, which many homeowners see as an exhausting task.

To make the job worthwhile, the non-profit organization, Communities in Bloom recognizes residents who go the extra mile to make their property's beautiful with the Yard of the Week competition. Since 2010, the City of Selkirk has been competing in the provincial Communities in Bloom competition. The Yard of the Week contest, which runs until Aug. 18, encourages residents to beautify their own yards.

"We've had a really good response so far and I would definitely like to see more people participate too," said Communities in Bloom committee member and provincial judge, Michelle Balharry.

To participate, residents can nominate a yard by entering a ballot in the box at customer service at Home Hardware Selkirk.

"They're a wonderful sponsor and Home Hardware is a national sponsor for Communities in Bloom across Canada," said Balharry.

Winning yards receive a $100 Home Hardware gift card and their picture in the Record.

Alongside the Yard of the Week, Balharry hopes to begin nominating a Commercial Business of the Week. She says this should encourage businesses to maintain their properties before the Communities in Bloom judging tour of the city on July 20.

People often think the judging is based on flowers, but Balharry says the criteria is actually based on six sections, including tidiness and environmental action.

Last week's Yard of the Week winners, Elly and Bob Garrett, said they're just thrilled and have been hoping to win since Elly's parents won the Garden of the Week competition in 1991.

"We really enjoy doing it and it's for everybody to enjoy because it's covered in snow for six months," she said with a smile.

Yard sale helps raise funds for Children's Miracle Network

By Maggie Wysocki

A yard sale hosted at Selkirk's Dairy Queen location helped raise $480 for the Children's Miracle Network on June 25.

This year the money donated hit close to home for employee, Shannon Peslaruk who spent the last year and a half in and out of the Children's Hospital with her daughter, Madilyn.

"It really hits home hard since the Children's Hospital has done so much for her and I wanted to do something for them," said Peslaruk.

Madilyn, who's one-and-a-half, suffers from Hypoplastic Left Heart Syndrome (HLHS), a birth defect that affects normal blood flow through the heart.

The money raised was donated on behalf of Madilyn and Peslaruk says the community's support was amazing.

"It was really nice having so many people show up. People who didn't even work here came to volunteer too."

Madilyn has already undergone two surgeries and will need one more when she's three, but for now her mom says she's doing great.

"It's been really tough but the hospital has been so good. It's just so nice everything they do and organize and there's so many good volunteers."

Peslaruk hopes to make the Dairy Queen yard sale fundraiser an annual event, raising even more money for other kids like her daughter in the years to come.

Local youth to take the stage at Rockin' on The Red

Submitted

As Wayne McIntosh, owner of the ever popular Half Moon Drive In in Lockport prepares to launch this year's Rockin' on The Red he has announced another new program tied to the festival.

"This event is all about giving back to the community," said McIntosh. "We offer free family entertainment, we partner with Manitoba Children's Rehabilitation Foundation to provide a free mobility aid to a local child, and beginning this year we are giving some talented youth from our local high school the opportunity to perform on the main stage."

Now in its fifth year, Rockin' on The Red kicks off on Friday, July 14 with host Don Percy and perennial Manitoba favourite Ray St Germain.

The lineup includes Emily Greene, a fiddler who has been invited to perform at the Canadian Masters Fiddling Championships Junior Showcase in Quebec; Chris Fontaine, a lanky dancer who is the very essence of the King of Pop; Purplexity, an A

"These kids will perform between the featured main stage professional acts both Friday and Saturday evenings," continued McIntosh. "Steel-town Ford is the main stage sponsor and they are very happy to see local youth participating. We also partner with the Selkirk Steelers Hockey Club and some of the players will be on hand both nights."

"The musical entertainment ranges from country to rhythm and blues, to rock and pop," noted McIntosh.

Friday evening main stage acts feature tributes to Keith Urban, CCR, Bon Jovi and The Beatles. Saturday offers free family fun from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m. with the main stage taking off with host Chris Walby at 6:30 p.m. and the B-Side Champs, a Cher tribute, Soul Train, and Whole Lotta Angus, an AC/DC tribute band. Netley Creek golf tourney to benefit KidSport

By Maggie Wysocki

For Netley Creek Golf Course's 25th anniversary last year, the staff decided to find a charity they could help out.

They unanimously decided on KidSport Interlake Region because it connected to their philosophy of letting all kids play sports, said Bonnie Dalman, a KidSport MB volunteer chairperson and Netley Creek Golf Course employee.

"We've always let kids under 17 play for free after 2 p.m. so they can learn the game," she said, adding that the course adopted this idea even before the National Golf Course Owners Associations started the "Take A Kid to the Course" campaign.

Netley Creek is hoping to help out

KidSport again this year and are gearing up to host their second fundraiser of the season, a golf tournament complete with three meals.

"Most tournaments people only get one meal but we've had so many sponsors so we're doing a continental breakfast, lunch and a gala steak dinner," said Dalman.

There's 80 spots available for the July 21 tournament, which costs $105 and includes a $20 tax receipt for KidSport Manitoba, a cart rental, three meals and a guaranteed prize to take home.

The event will also include a $100 cash prize for the team with the best retro costume.

"We're really hoping we can sell out," she said.

Folk Festival breaks records, welcomes change

By Maggie Wysocki

Sunshine, bubbles, hula hoops and oodles of musical talent took over Birds Hill Provincial Park last weekend during the 44th annual Winnipeg Folk Festival.

"We're the third biggest community in Manitoba this weekend, which is pretty cool," said the festival's executive director, Lynne Skromeda.

Though exact attendance numbers had yet to be calculated by Sunday night, organizers believe more than 60,000 folkies took in the weekend festivities and that Saturday's walk-up attendance may have broken records. It was also the first time in more than five years the campground sold out.

Not to mention, the rain stayed away.

"This has been a really fantastic year. I couldn't have ordered the weather better myself," Skromeda said.

But even after 44 years of success, she says Folk Fest still focuses on improving to give folkies exactly what they want.

"We really like to react to audience feedback and do the best we can to accommodate everyone's needs."

A few changes to this year's fest included composting in the festival area and campground, a partnership with Jardins St. Leon Gardens for a fresh fruit and vegetable stand and additional training for first aid volunteers to deal with opioid overdoses.

"We know of the sensitivity around the opioid crisis and even though it's not really our audience we want to make sure people are feeling safe," said Skromeda.

No naloxone kits had been administered when the Record spoke with first aid volunteers on Sunday afternoon.

The festival also made the choice to distance itself from the Canada 150 celebrations.

"For us it's about celebrating music and people and so we wanted to look at the entire breath of Canadian music ... not only the last 150 years," Skromeda said, adding that several Indigenous musicians performed throughout the weekend.

But the fest celebrated the country with the "Canada Far and Wide" daytime workshop, which showcased eight uniquely different artists and was sponsored by Aboriginal Peoples Television Network.

Selkirk resident, Carley Lepine, 24, has been rocking tie dye T-shirts at Folk Fest since she was one and says every year the festival gets better for her.

"It's always changing to accommodate so many artists and they really support local musicians too, which I love," she said.

Lepine said it's tough to pick a favourite performance, but listening to the daytime workshops was a highlight. She hopes to follow in her father and aunt's footsteps by performing on a festival stage one day too.

The entire weekend showcased music from 78 different performers, including crowd-pleasers City and Colour, Feist, Brandi Carlile and Bare-naked Ladies.

The 45th annual Winnipeg Folk Festival will take place July 5 to 8, 2018.

Selkirk history book author will be remembered as 'a real inspiration'

By Lindsey Enns

What Rosalyn Howard will remember most about her father is his commitment to his family along with his sense of humour.

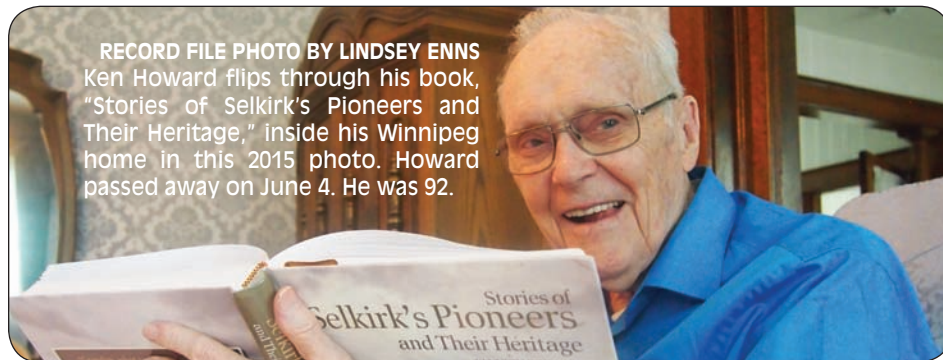

"He was really funny," the Dunnottar resident said. "I remember him always cracking jokes.

"Right up until his final days he would manage to comment on something and make light of it."

Former Selkirk resident Ken Howard passed away on June 4 in Winnipeg following a brief illness. He was 92.

"Dad was a real inspiration in terms of just keep going," Rosalyn said. "All of the Howards are like that."

Ken's drive and determination to preserve Selkirk's history also led him to release his book, "Stories of Selkirk's Pioneers and Their Heritage," in 2011 at the age of 86.

Ken Howard flips through his book, "Stories of Selkirk's Pioneers and Their Heritage," inside his Winnipeg home in this 2015 photo. Howard passed away on June 4. He was 92.

The book was printed to commemorate Selkirk's 125th anniversary and is dedicated to Ken's late grandmother, father, and mother and to "all Selkirk, Manitoba's pioneers, upon whose shoulders we stand."

The 506-page book, which took him eight years to write, includes stories from the more than 100 interviews he conducted.

"He loved the work he did for that book," Rosalyn said. "He felt so honoured to be trusted by people with their stories.

"He loved doing the research and crafting it into something that people would care about."

Ken also tried his best to encourage youth in Selkirk to learn more about their city's history. In 2015, he gifted 360 Comp graduates with a copy of his book in hopes of sparking their interest.

Along with a long list of accomplishments, Ken also wrote weekly columns for several publications including a history column for the Record. In the early 1940s he also collected stories for the then edition of the Selkirk Record. His very first job was as a paperboy, earning one cent per day per customer.

"He was passionate about always having a project," Rosalyn said. "He had this incredible commitment to continued learning."

Rosalyn added well into his senior years her father kept his computer skills up to date and was always on the look out for new programs.

Two years ago, Ken moved to The Portsmouth in Winnipeg where he made new friends, joined the residents' council and started a poetry club.

Besides good genes, Rosalyn believes her father's commitment to staying active helped him live a long and full life. Even in his eighties he was still swimming laps. He also loved nature and music and was an avid gardener.

"We're really going to miss him," Rosalyn said. "We've been so lucky to have had him in our lives for this long and that's what we're trying to focus on."

A Celebration of Life for Ken Howard is being held at the Portsmouth Residence in Winnipeg, on Friday, July 14, and his ashes will be buried on Saturday, July 15 at St. Clements Anglican Church in Selkirk.

The Record caught up with Ken shortly after his 90th birthday in 2015. During that time he spoke about his love of Selkirk and the city's history and how he hoped the stories in his book helped document it.

"Each one of these is their own story," he told the Record while holding up his book. "This will benefit so many people ... and it's never ending."

Three Selkirk streets undergo resurfacing, land drainage upgrades

Submitted

An investment of close to $1 million will improve three city streets, drainage and reduce the number of combined sewer systems that still exist in Selkirk.

Dan McDermid, director of operations, said portions of McLean, Sophia and Pacific were selected for resurfacing and land drainage improvements this summer, in accordance with the city's Capital Asset Management Program (CAMP).

Capital Asset Management is an innovative practice that allows municipalities to better catalogue, track and manage their assets. Using predictive modelling techniques, long-range maintenance planning, paired with long-term financial planning tools, capital asset management will allow Selkirk to get the most out of its infrastructure, extending its service life and helping to make better, more cost effective construction and renovation decisions.

City management completed Phase 1 of its CAMP in 2016 and it confirmed what they already knew – the city's infrastructure was aging and much of it was reaching the end of its useful life.

Duane Nicol, the city's CAO, said that using the robust asset data the city now has in one database will move investment decisions beyond common human biases.

"Without these tools investment decisions can get made by crazy things like which streets Councillors or staff drive on most, or have most exposure to. These tools also help us get beyond simply being reactionary – that is to say, waiting until the asset fails before we rehab or repair it," Nicol said. "A 'worst-is-first' strategy for asset management is, counter-intuitively, not the most cost-effective strategy. Yet without a strong asset management system, that's the trap into which that most municipalities fall."

McDermid said the city's CAMP will help stage and time projects for maximum cost effectiveness as well.

"For example, this year we knew that we had some combined sewer systems on streets that needed resurfacing. So we moved up the sewer separation work planned for those blocks to take advantage of the fact that we were removing the old pavement. In the long run, better project planning and staging will save the city millions, which we can put towards doing more work," McDermid said.

Both McLean and Pacific were on a combined sewer system, meaning rain water and waste water use the same pipe. Both have now been separated.

McDermid said the city has been working to eliminate combined sewers to reduce basement backups and prevent potential overflows of combined sewer effluent being dumped into the Red River.

McLean Avenue was resurfaced from Main to Eveline Street at a cost of $250,000 and also had land drainage sewer upgrades, which cost $170,000.

Pacific Avenue resurfacing between Jemima and Sophia Street cost $200,000 and combined sewer separation cost $65,500. Sophia Street resurfacing between Superior and Queen Avenue had a price tag of $300,000.

All projects were paid for from reserve funds with grant support from the Province of Manitoba.

Blue Jays battling down the stretch

Staff

The Interlake Blue Jays had a very busy stretch with seven games in just eight days last week.

Interlake won two of those games but lost five, including a doubleheader sweep at the hands of the St. James A's last Sunday.

The A's won those two games by scores of 8-1 and 11-7. The box scores for those two games were not listed on the league website at press time.

On Friday, Stonewall split with the Brandon Marlins. Brandon won the first game 9-2, which was a continuation of a matchup that was called due to poor weather after four innings on June 2.

The Blue Jays then exacted some revenge with a 4-3 victory in the nightcap, scoring a pair of runs in both the fourth and fifth innings.

Emerson Klimpke earned the win, scattering just three hits while issuing five walks in seven innings. He also struck out five.

Interlake started the week with a 15-4 loss to the Pembina Valley Orioles and then downed Altona 4-1 the next night.

The Blue Jays then lost 16-3 to the Carillon Sultans on Wednesday evening.

Interlake, now 7-14 and in seventh place in the eight-team league, visited the Elmwood Giants last night and will play the Bisons in Altona tonight.

Interlake will then host first-place St. James Friday at Fines Field. First pitch is 7:30 p.m.

U16 development team fielding great local talent

By Brian Bowman

Team Manitoba's U16 development baseball team capped off a successful summer by finishing second at an Elmwood Giants tournament last weekend.

Manitoba was defeated 3-1 by Regina in the championship game.

"It was a real good game," said Manitoba head coach Jeff Bouchard. "There was good pitching, good defence, and it was a quick game. It was over in an hour-and-a-half – it was a really well-played game."

Manitoba reached the final after finishing 4-1 in round-robin play. There is plenty of talent on this year's U16 squad.

"We think we have quite a bit of talent," Bouchard said confidently. "It's kind of a three-year program that we're working on."

Bouchard heavily scouted the province for talent, eventually inviting about 40 players to a camp last fall. Players worked out during the winter and this spring where Bouchard and his staff trimmed the roster down to 20 kids (which includes seven 15 year olds) at the end of May.

Four of those players are locals – Davis Fenske (Stonewall), Devon Casson (Argyle), Tyler Smith (St. Andrews) and Christian Ingram (West St. Paul) – and each has made significant contributions to the program.

"We liked the talent when we were scouting them," Bouchard said.

Fenske is a pitcher who also plays third base.

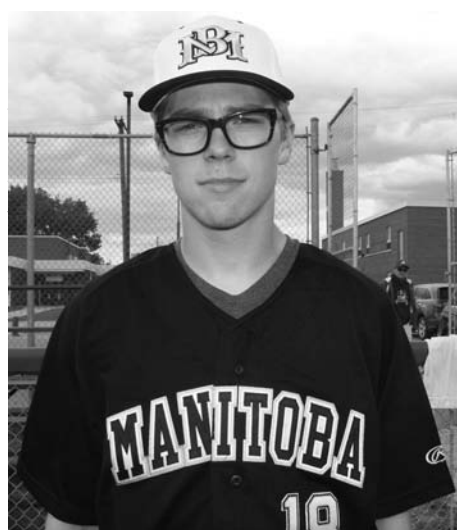

"Davis' best chance of cracking the lineup next year will be as a pitcher," Bouchard said. "He does play third base and he is a decent third baseman...but we see him making this club as a pitcher."

"We like his composure on the mound (and) he throws strikes. He's been playing against 17, 18 year olds, and only being 15, he handles himself really well."

Casson is another 15 year old with plenty of promise. The middle infielder, who can also pitch, is a very good defensive player.

"He has a decent arm and we like his swing," Bouchard said. "He has a good, compact swing and puts the ball in play. He doesn't tend to strike out too much."

Ingram, 16, is a real nice talent with an impressive swing. He hit in the

Christian Ingram

Tyler Smith

"He's very composed on the mound and he throws three or four pitches that he can consistently throw for strikes," Bouchard noted. "At this point, he's not overpowering but he has a velocity that has enough speed on it that he can get by with his fastball and his other pitches that he can throw for strikes."

The 16U development team played doubleheaders against Midget "AAA" teams throughout the summer and also competed at a Fargo tournament. Manitoba finished with a 2-2 record at the Fargo tourney.

Bouchard feels their program is definitely headed in the right direction.

"I'm happy with where we are right now," he said. "I think we have a good nucleus of kids that we can work with up until next spring when we get down to our final roster for next year when we head off to New Brunswick for the Canada Cup."

Midget Pirates prepared for the playoffs

By Brian Bowman

The North Winnipeg Pirates are hoping to play their best baseball of the season when the Midget playoffs start this week.

North Winnipeg finished with a mediocre .500 record (12-12-1) during the regular season. That put the Pirates in third place, behind only the St. James A's (15-5) and Bonivital Black Sox (11-7-1).

North Winnipeg wrapped up its regular season last Thursday with Bonivital. The Pirates lost Game 1 by a 6-2 score and then the two teams tied 6-6.

Earlier in the week, the Pirates were rained out against the Elmwood Giants.

"With a very young team, we just make enough errors to keep our record at .500," said Pirates' head coach Gary Dear in an email. "Looking at the game sheets for the year, the good thing is we only had two losses where we were beaten cleanly."

Like most young teams, the Pirates had trouble closing out games.

"The bad thing is we had 10 losses that we shouldn't have had," lamented Dear. "But that is baseball. Looking back we finished right where I thought we would."

The Pirates began their playoffs last night against Bonivital (no score was available) and then will host Winnipeg South Friday.

On Saturday, North Winnipeg will play at home at 3 p.m. and then will visit St. James at 8 p.m. The Pirates play their home games in Stonewall.

The Midget provincials start next Thursday at Winnipeg South.

The Pirates' roster this season includes local players Kalli Einarson (Gimli), Liam Allen (St Andrews), Brittney Langlais (Lockport), Christian Ingram (West St Paul), Jayden Allary (Warren), Nathan Slaby (West St. Paul) and Connor Oleschak (Warren). Other players feature Jeremy Wasilewski, Ryan Wasilewski, Henry Coste, Nolan Raven, Earl Masanque and Ben Anderson.

Besides Dear, who lives in St. Andrews, the Pirates coaches include Harry Slaby, Roger Langlais and Sam Nocita.

IN MEMORIAM

Angela Dawn Cromarty
May 20, 1983 – July 16, 2012

The Lord came for you Ang, on a cool, rainy morning. Through tear-filled eyes we said goodbye Angela. The Lord needed another angel in Heaven, He knew it was time for you to go. For 5 years Ang, we have asked the Lord "Why did you have to take Angela from us?" He knew it was time for you to go. With broken hearts we share our memories Of our Angela with family and friends. We also share smiles of our memories of Ang, Knowing that she is there in our hearts, Also in our voices when we speak of her beautiful smile, Her cute, nervous laugh, and the love that she shared With all the people that knew her. We know you are near Angela, we have sensed your presence. We feel that you are near when we hold "Teddy", your little teddy bear. Take care of our baby girl, Lord, until the day that we can Be with her again in the Kingdom of Heaven. -So sadly missed and forever remembered by parents Andy and Selena Cromarty

ANNOUNCEMENT

IN MEMORIAM

Glenn Salter
July 15, 2011

I often sit and think about,
The years passed by;
Of the happiness and joy
That was shared by you and I.
I think of all the laughter,
The smiles and the fun:
And before I even know,
My tears have once again begun.
Although it brings me comfort,
To walk down memory lane:
It reminds me of how, without you,
Life has never been the same.
Gone but not forgotten, forever in my heart,
Until we're together again.

-Love Sandi
